Our principal risks

Our approach to identifying and assessing modern slavery risk is embedded within our broader risk management practices. Businesses and functions governed by this statement are contractually required to conform to Camira's control requirements including, active diligence in the identification and notification of modern slavery risks. Our supply chain partners are additionally contractually obligated to mitigate modern slavery risks with their supply chain partners.

We have considered the exposure of Camira to modern slavery risk, taking into account the nature of our business activities; the application of group policies, particularly purchasing and recruitment practices.

Overall, we consider the Group's exposure to Modern Slavery to be low.

Tackling modern slavery risk in our supply chain

The management of modern slavery risk and impact in our supply chain is embedded into our Supplier Assessment Framework. Supported by our Strategic Purchasing team, our supply chain is responsible for ensuring compliance with local labour laws.

We assess the modern slavery risk to people in our supply chain by considering the country of origin we are sourcing products and raw materials from. Our Strategic Purchasing team develop expert knowledge of local labour laws and human rights risks through stringent assessment and audit of potential supply chain partners. The Camira Supplier Assessment Framework was introduced during 2018 with an achieved target of over 90% of total spend suppliers assessed.

Contractual obligations between Camira and its supply chain partners is now mandated through our newly introduced Supplier Framework Agreement. Our agreement places requirements on our suppliers to support the eradication of modern slavery risks through the adherence with local legislation. During 2018 we have focussed on the implementation of the new agreements with our key suppliers. Of our major suppliers instructed during 2018, four are now contracted under our Supplier Framework Agreement.

Tackling modern slavery risk in our business

The management of modern slavery risk and impact in our business operations is embedded into our recruitment processes. Supported by our Human Resource team, our Leadership team is responsible for ensuring compliance with local labour laws.

Introduced in 2018, all employees receive regular mandated training on ethical behaviours. In particular, we provided modern slavery awareness training with refresher training taking place annually in November. To date, 100% of employees affecting our modern slavery risk exposure have undertaken our modern slavery awareness training.

We encourage the raising of questions and concerns related to ethical business practices. Besides operating an 'open-door culture' to encourage dialog between our workers and Leadership team, our Whistleblowing Policy ensures people can report any concerns in confidence. Concerns raised are reviewed by subject matter experts within the Camira Group; we also seek external counsel when required. To date no concerns have been raised related to modern slavery.

Looking forward

In the next 12 months we will continue to strengthen our approach to managing the risk of modern slavery within our business.
